Malone Curriculum Vitae

Jean E. Malone, Ph.D.

Professional Biography

Jean Malone is a Managing Director at Ankura Consulting Group based in Washington, DC. Dr. Malone has more than 25 years of experience in risk assessment and statistical analysis. She has provided analytic consulting for private, public, and academic entities.

Since joining the firm in 2000, Dr. Malone has been engaged in cases involving mass torts and product liability, class actions and class certifications, commercial litigation and damages, and intellectual property. For example, she led a team that operationalized an approach to notify and determine fair compensation for millions of consumers eligible for inclusion in a $336 million credit card settlement. The court described the results of this approach as “a resounding success.”

Dr. Malone has developed numerous models that assess risk. For example, she developed a decades-long actuarial model that estimated arising of several forms of cancer following exposure to trichloroethylene leakage from a plant in the Midwest. This model was crucial in the process that resulted in the company emerging from chapter 11 bankruptcy with a trust fund dedicated to paying valid claims to exposed individuals.

Dr. Malone has completed numerous forecasts of asbestos-related liability during bankruptcy procedures and continues to counsel the subsequent trusts on historical data sources and claims research methods to assure accurate payment routines.

Dr. Malone has provided claims forecasts and other analyses for the following Chapter 11 bankruptcy cases and personal injury trusts:

- Met-Coil Systems Corporation
- Plibrico Company
- DII Industries, LLC Asbestos PI Trust
- Babcock and Wilcox Asbestos Personal Injury Settlement Trust
- Armstrong World Industries Personal Injury Settlement Trust
- Federal Mogul Asbestos Settlement Trust
- United States Gypsum Personal Injury Trust
- Independent Assessor Dow Corning Settlement

Prior to joining Ankura, Dr. Malone was a Consultant for PricewaterhouseCoopers’ Survey Research Center. In this capacity, she advised various clients, including the Insurance Legislators’ Foundation, the Federal Highway Administration, the Internal Revenue Service, and the District of Columbia Office of Personnel.

As an Assistant Professor in Sociology at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro from 1991 to 1998, Dr. Malone designed and taught courses in research methods and data analysis, published articles in refereed journals, presented research findings at conferences, refereed for professional journals, consulted for textbook publishers, and coordinated the Quantitative Methods section for a professional conference. Her course syllabi were included as examples of excellence in American Sociological Association Teaching Resource Guides.

Prior to completing a Ph.D., Dr. Malone conducted research, including research design, questionnaire development, and statistical analysis, for project sponsors including the National Institute of Health, Family Circle Magazine, the Department of Psychology of the State University of New York, and the Graduate Center of the City University of New York. As a U.S. Public Health Service Pre- and Post-Doctoral Fellowship awardee, Dr. Malone conducted an evaluation study for Suffolk County, NY Police Department on the effects of bilingual advocate programs. She trained interviewers and supervised large telephone surveys for a variety of projects, including the pre-jury selection phase of the Westmoreland/CBS trial.
